Jack and the beanstalk

Once upon a time there was a boy named Jack. Jack lived with his mother. He had no father. When his father was still alive, a bad giant stole his harp and his hen that laid golden eggs.

Mother said: "We have no money for food. That nasty giant stole our hen." Mother said: "Take the cow to the market and sell her so that we can buy food." Off Jack went to the market to sell the cow.

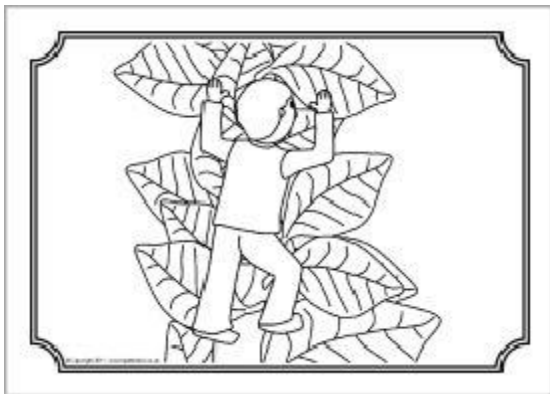

On the way, Jack met the butcher, who showed him five magic beans. Jack gave him the cow and took the beans.

When Jack gave his mother the beans, she was very cross. She threw the beans out of the window. Upset mother said: "You gave our cow away for five beans?" Jack answered: "But these are magic beans, mother!"

That night Jack went to bed hungry because there was no food for supper. "If only I had sold the cow," he thought.

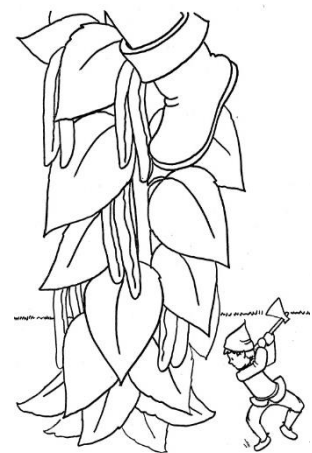

The next morning Jack looked out of the window and saw a very tall beanstalk. Jack climbed up the beanstalk. When Jack got to the top, he saw that the bad giant lived there. He also saw his father's harp and hen that laid golden eggs. Jack took the golden eggs and climbed down the beanstalk. The next day Jack went back up the beanstalk to fetch his father's harp and hen that laid golden eggs.

Jack took the harp and hen. As he was leaving, the giant woke up! The giant chased Jack. The giant said : “Fee, fie, fo, fum! I can smell the farmer’s son.” Jack said: “You took these from my dad!”

Jack climbed down the beanstalk and the nasty giant ran after him. The giant shouted: “Give me my hen!” Jack called for his mother. Jack said: “Mother, bring the axe!” She ran out with an axe. Mother replied with joy: “Oh! You found your father’s hen!”

. “Chop mother! Chop!” shouted Jack. His mother chopped the beanstalk as fast as she could. Before the giant could catch Jack, the beanstalk fell down. “I am so glad you found Father’s things.”

Jack gave Mother a hug and said: "Now we are not poor anymore."

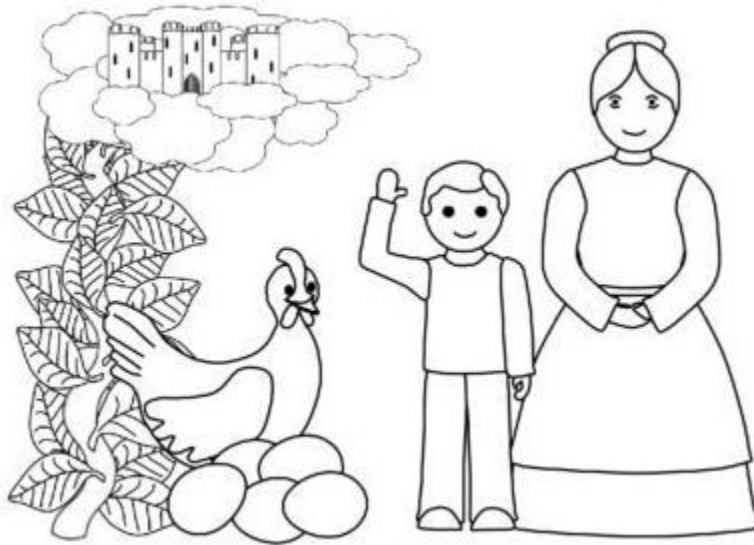

Jack and his mother lived happily ever after.
